

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Denise Sanfarraro / Caffe Aldo Lamberti
856-663-7887 / lambertimarketing@comcast.net

Cherry Hill's Caffe Aldo Lamberti Enters Composting Program
Restaurant's Food Waste – About 75 Percent of the Total – Will be Recycled

CHERRY HILL, N.J., Sept. 28, 2012 – Caffe Aldo Lamberti, known for its ultrafresh seafood and extensive wine list, will now be known for something else: earmarking the vast majority of its waste to be recycled as compost. It is the first Cherry Hill restaurant to participate in such a program.

Working with Organic Diversion, a food waste recycling company in Marlton, N.J., Caffe Aldo Lamberti's food waste will be separated and recycled into compost, a fertilizer and soil amendment, and wind up in local gardens, parks and farms rather than landfills. Among the destinations is Caffe Aldo Lamberti's own on-site vegetable and herb garden.

“We're very proud to participate in this program. Our loyal guests know us and love us for our delicious, fresh food and excellent service, and now they can dine with us knowing that we're helping the environment, that hardly anything is going to waste,” said George Katsikis, General Manager for Caffe Aldo Lamberti.

Under the program, Organic Diversion develops an operations plan, supplies the equipment, and hauls away Caffe Aldo Lamberti's food waste for composting. A monthly report shows them how much has been recycled. Organic Diversion's program also includes training and education in food waste recycling for restaurant employees. In addition to benefitting the environment, Caffe Aldo Lamberti may see a reduction in its waste disposal costs.

“Cherry Hill proudly wears the badge of trailblazer when it comes to recycling, and I suspect Caffè Aldo Lamberti will only be the first of many food businesses in the township to reduce waste by composting,” said Cherry Hill Mayor Chuck Cahn. “If every restaurant in Cherry Hill were to ultimately follow suit, just imagine the impact this could have on area landfills.”

About Caffè Aldo Lamberti

Caffè Aldo Lamberti is Zagat Rated for its “ultrafresh seafood,” “outstanding” wine list and “professional” service. They offer authentic Italian cuisine, specializing in fresh fish and seafood, in a classic, yet romantic, ambiance. Caffè Aldo Lamberti’s sophisticated wine list has won numerous awards including Wine Spectator’s Best of Award of Excellence and Wine Enthusiast’s Award of Unique Distinction. They recently became the first restaurant in South Jersey to feature the Tiare™ Technology Wireless WineList System. This application allows Caffè Aldo Lamberti guests to easily view and order wines using the Apple iPad tablet. Caffè Aldo Lamberti is located at 2011 Route 70 West in Cherry Hill, N.J. Find them online at www.caffelamberti.com.

About Organic Diversion

Marlton, N.J.-based Organic Diversion has long-term experience in both the food service industry and in food waste collections and hauling. They offer chain-wide, multistate recycling solutions for food waste generators. Recently, Organic Diversion announced they are developing a food waste to energy and composting facility, which will be located in Gloucester City, N.J. The world-class facility will use cutting edge technology to revolutionize the current food and yard waste disposal system in South Jersey. For more information, visit www.organicdiversion.com

###